

The EQ Climb

Emotional intelligence · teens–adult (gentle pacing) · 30 minutes · one screen, the free game, this page

For your homeschool table — a 30-minute lesson, zero prep. Open the free game on any screen and follow the five steps. Where a step says “the room/the group,” read it as your family; where it says “host,” that’s you.

1 · THE HOOK (3 min)

“Think of the last time you said something you regretted within ten seconds. What happened in those ten seconds BEFORE you spoke?”

2 · PLAY TOGETHER (12 min)

Climb ten questions; on every scenario question, ask the room “what would the regrettable version of you do?” before voting on the wise answer — naming the impulse is half the skill.

Play together: the group votes before anyone clicks, and every explanation is read aloud — the explanation is the lesson.

3 · THE TALK (8 min)

1. Is the goal to feel LESS — or to be less surprised by what you feel?
2. What’s the difference between hearing someone and making them feel heard?
3. Who in your life is easy to empathize with — and who is the workout?

4 · SOLO CLIMB (5 min)

Five questions, no scores compared this time — EQ scores are personal.

5 · THE TAKEAWAY (2 min)

“Between feeling and acting there is a gap; character lives in the gap.”

Homework: Once this week, in a heated moment, name your emotion silently before speaking — report whether the sentence that followed changed.

THE TEACHING CREED

You are not the expert; the game is. Your job is to vote last, read aloud well, and ask “why?” one more time than feels natural. Celebrate wrong answers loudly — in here, wrong is where the lesson lives.

GENO — the GSU tutor you can talk to, free, 24/7 in 32 languages — can explain any answer a second way.
