

The Vitality Climb

Health basics · teens–adult, families welcome · 30 minutes · one screen, the free game, this page

For your homeschool table — a 30-minute lesson, zero prep. Open the free game on any screen and follow the five steps. Where a step says “the room/the group,” read it as your family; where it says “host,” that’s you.

1 · THE HOOK (3 min)

“You own exactly one body and it came without a manual. What’s one thing you wish it HAD come with instructions for?”

2 · PLAY TOGETHER (12 min)

Climb ten questions; when sleep, water, movement, or food questions land, the room self-scores silently (1–5 fingers held to the chest) — awareness without confession.

Play together: the group votes before anyone clicks, and every explanation is read aloud — the explanation is the lesson.

3 · THE TALK (8 min)

1. Why do we maintain our cars better than our bodies — same logic as the trades climb, what changed?
2. Which is the keystone habit — sleep, food, or movement — the one that drags the others along?
3. What’s the difference between health information and health marketing?

4 · SOLO CLIMB (5 min)

Five questions.

5 · THE TAKEAWAY (2 min)

“Maintain before breaking — the Steward’s rule, applied to the steward.”

Homework: Pick the keystone habit you defended in question 2; move it 1% this week (15 minutes earlier to bed counts); report honestly.

A note for parents: this is education, not medical advice — health decisions belong with the learner and their doctor.

THE TEACHING CREED

You are not the expert; the game is. Your job is to vote last, read aloud well, and ask “why?” one more time than feels natural. Celebrate wrong answers loudly — in here, wrong is where the lesson lives.

GENO — the GSU tutor you can talk to, free, 24/7 in 32 languages — can explain any answer a second way.
